

SCOTLAND YARD TO SEND EXHIBIT

Major Sylvester Receives a Favorable Reply.

REPRESENTATIVES TO COME

Police Chief May Realize Dream of Real and Active International Police Association.

For several years Major Richard Sylvester, as president of the International Police Association, has been endeavoring to bring about a practical demonstration and arrangement with foreign countries of what the name of the association implies. He has canvassed the principal cities and countries of the world, and is now beginning to realize his dream in that direction.

In response to his efforts he has opened up a new era in police work, and has accomplished for the first time that co-operation and friendly feeling between the police institutions of this country and those abroad which will eventually establish one grand system.

The difficulties have been in educating authorities abroad to the American manner of establishing and operating the police departments, and the Americans likewise have been studying foreign methods and have had them illustrated by Major Sylvester, president of association. As an evidence of the great network which has been gradually woven through the work of the Washington chief, Japan will send an extensive exhibit to the police exhibit at the St. Louis Exposition of which Major Sylvester is the father, and the London, Scotland Yard, authorities send the following communication, which Major Sylvester has just received:

Metropolitan Police Office,
New Scotland Yard,
London, April 8, 1904.
Dear Sir: The commissioner of police of the metropolis you have extended to him to be present at the St. Louis convention, and he much regrets it is impossible for him to avail himself of it. He has, however, sent to the Exposition some representatives of the force and some exhibits illustrating the methods of identification of criminals adopted in this country, which he trusts may prove interesting. Wishing you a very successful meeting, believe me,
Yours truly,
GEORGE H. EDWARDS,
Secretary.

Major Sylvester's principal regret is that Congress does not incline to aid the district department in making an extensive exhibit and in the establishment of a national bureau of criminal identification. The Judiciary Committee of the House favorably reported.

HELEN GOULD SPENDS DAY IN WASHINGTON

Takes Luncheon With President and Mrs. Roosevelt—Leaves City for Norfolk This Afternoon.

Helen Gould, who arrived last night from New York, on her way to Norfolk, where she will attend the dedication of the Y. M. C. A. building, which she has presented to that city, will leave late this afternoon for Fort Monroe on the Norfolk and Washington steamer.

With Miss Gould are Margaret F. Wilder, Sarah D. F. Edwards, Miss Montgomery, Miss O'Brien, Miss Coats, and Mr. and Mrs. William B. Miller, all of New York.

The party registered last night at the New Willard. This morning Miss Gould and her friends spent several hours in visiting interesting points about the city. They called at the White House, where they were received by Mrs. Roosevelt.

Miss Gould remained to luncheon with the President and Mrs. Roosevelt. The officers at Fort Monroe received a special drill in honor of Miss Gould today, but owing to the necessity of reaching Norfolk tomorrow she could not wait. The drill will probably be given when Miss Gould returns. She declined to receive anyone at the hotel today except personal friends.

WOULD PLAGE AGE LIMIT FOR CLERKS AT SEVENTY

Chairman Gillett Directed to Report Bill to This Effect—No Pension Is Provided.

As a result of a series of hearings which the House Committee on Reform in the Civil Service has been conducting upon the question of retiring clerks, the committee this morning directed Chairman Gillett of Massachusetts to report a bill which is in substance as follows:

That on June 30, 1907, every office in the classified service held by a person who is then over seventy years of age shall be declared vacant and that after June 30, 1907, every office in the classified service shall become vacant when the person holding it becomes seventy years of age.

The effect of this bill, which Mr. Gillett was authorized to introduce, if passed, will make the age limit in Government service seventy years, and include persons beyond that age from holding office. It does not provide for their retirement upon a pension.

The committee also directed Mr. Gillett to report back to the House all such bills as have been referred to the committee, which contained a provision for the retirement of clerks upon civil pension, with the recommendation that they lie upon the table.

The committee further directed Mr. Gillett to draft a bill providing for a reclassification of clerks in the classified service.

The purpose of such a bill is to provide for small increases in salary based upon merit and to make them more frequent than is possible under the present system. This measure will be discussed at the next meeting of the committee.

Pennsylvania Did Not Instruct Its Delegates

Effort to Follow Lead of New York Frowned Upon at Democratic Machine Headquarters—Resume of Platform.

HARRISBURG, April 19.—The Democratic State convention today nominated Samuel Gustine Thompson, of Philadelphia, for supreme court justice, and selected State electors and delegates to the St. Louis convention. The delegates are uninstructed, and will vote as a unit in the national convention.

The executive committee arranged for the following temporary organization: Chairman, F. J. Fitzsimmons, of Scranton; secretary, W. T. Meehling, of Butler; assistant secretaries, W. Hayes Grier, of Lancaster; C. A. Small, of Columbia; W. R. Kemmerer, of Berks, and Charles Newhart, of Armstrong; reading clerk, J. Wood Clark, of Indiana; sergeant at arms, Cyrus Bogart, of Centre; doorkeeper, James Sweeney, of Luzerne. For permanent organization, the chairman was Senator Arthur G. Dewalt, of Lehigh, with the temporary officers.

Republicans Indorse Richardson and Poe

President and Chapin Brown Come in for Commendatory Resolutions—Gathering of Faithful in Virginia Avenue Baptist Church.

Because of the inability of the harmony committee to get proper men for the election of judges at elections on short notice, it was announced today that little or nothing would be done at the meeting of the Republican harmony committee tomorrow. It is expected, however, that the arrangements for the primaries will be completed next week. In the meantime the candidates for delegates to the national convention are holding meetings in various parts of the city, some large, and the majority small.

One of the largest meetings of the campaign was held last night in the Virginia Avenue Baptist Church in the interest of the Richardson-Poe ticket. There were between seven and eight hundred people present, all representing the respectable element. There was much enthusiasm, and President Roosevelt, Chapin Brown, for national committeeman, and Dr. Richardson and Poe were indorsed by resolutions. Winston B. Hill called the meeting to order and Alexander Bernard was elected presiding officer. T. H. A. Moore was the secretary.

Charles H. Strother, an officer of the church, first spoke in behalf of the candidates. W. B. Hill followed him. The next speaker was the Rev. W. L. Harris, who made a strong appeal for the people to "stand pat" for the ticket headed by Richardson and Poe.

Talks on Suffrage.

Mr. Bernard then introduced James W. Poe. He said in part: "We are approaching one of the most important quadrennial elections held in the District of Columbia since Congress repealed our system of local self-government. Upon the conduct of the coming election will in large measure depend whether we shall have suffrage in this District. Congress will closely watch our conduct. If our election is conducted upon the great principles of the party of Lincoln, Grant, and Roosevelt, which stands for a fair election and an honest count, it will be commended to the country. If it is conducted in a manner that may be expected to provide for the election of a Delegate to Congress every two years, to represent this greatest of cities in that body."

Candidate Poe then reviewed the history of the Republican party, and said that President Roosevelt would sweep the country in November.

He said his colleague, Dr. W. S. Richardson, would be the next speaker.

Chamberlain Appears In House of Commons

Rousing Ministerial Reception Given Protectionist Leader, Punctuated by Irish Chaff. Record Crowd in the Galleries.

LONDON, April 19.—The announcement that the budget for the coming year would be announced today, drew a record crowd to the seats and galleries of the house of commons.

When Austen Chamberlain, chancellor of the exchequer, appeared on the floor, he was greeted with ministerial cheer. The greeting accorded his father, Joseph Chamberlain, the former colonial secretary, fully equalled that accorded the chancellor.

This is the first time the elder Mr. Chamberlain has appeared in the house since his return from Egypt. He was received with a rousing ministerial reception, which was punctuated with Irish chaff.

Michael J. Ryan, of Philadelphia, presented the name of Samuel Gustine Thompson, of Philadelphia, for the only nomination to be made, that of supreme court justice. William J. Brennan, of Pittsburgh, arose to second it. For national delegates-at-large, Col. James M. Guffey, State chairman; J. K. P. Hall, ex-Governor Robert E. Pattison, and Robert E. Wright were elected. The platform was completed at midnight and declares the President "unsafe." His various acts were denounced, the Panama matter being included under the condemnation of secret treaties. Tariff reform, enforcement of anti-trust laws, reduction of taxation, and avoidance of foreign entanglements were urged. The continuance of labor troubles was deplored. The Latin dominions and the conduct of State affairs as well as the perpetuation of the Quay machine were attacked.

SENATOR GORMAN IS FIRST CHOICE

Of Regular Democrats in the District.

PARKER BOOM STRIKES CITY

Hearst Making Frantic Efforts for a Following—Labor Demonstrations Planned for Him.

The Parker boom has reached Washington city, and the local Democrats are putting much more life into their campaign, the Hearst and anti-Hearst forces making a fight for every available vote.

It was announced today that the labor union of the city would make a demonstration in favor of Mr. Hearst on Monday. There will be a Hearst meeting this evening in Macabbee Temple. While this is going on the anti-Hearst Democrats, under the leadership of James L. Norris, will hold forth at the Hotel Raleigh, where they will complete their lists of judges and delegates. It is understood that this work has been done and the meeting is more to ratify lists than to take an initiative.

Despite all reports to the contrary, the central committee has been working hard, and it was said today that enough work had been accomplished to give the factions an unpleasant surprise when the vote is counted. It was also stated authoritatively that the first choice of the conservative wing of the local party for a Presidential candidate is Senator Arthur D. Gorman, who has been elected to the House of Representatives, and that should the opportunity arise, the central committee will come out for either.

Gorman First Choice.

On the surface, however, the central committee is simply working for an un-instructed delegation to the national convention, and it will go on the floor of the city convention with this proposition. In speaking of the matter this morning National Committeeman James L. Norris said: "We are for Gorman, Gray, Parker, or any other conservative Democrat who can win. The action of New York naturally makes Judge Parker a powerful candidate, and we like him here. I want to say, however, that we are working for an instructed delegation to the national convention. Large attendance is expected at the Raleigh Hotel meeting tonight."

The Hearst meeting there will be several members of Congress, and other prominent speakers. The mass meeting will be held at the Raleigh Hotel. The invitation is significant, as it shows that union labor organizations as such will take part in the campaign. Addresses will be made by Representatives Caldwell, Hughes, and Van Duzer.

Holmead Faction.

The four men who were ousted from the Hearst wing of the Democrats two days ago held another meeting last night, this time substituting the Holmead Democratic Club for the defunct Hearst central committee. The meeting took place at 1229 Pennsylvania Avenue, and Captain Collins, the chairman of the Hearst Campaign Club, who has been chairman of the executive committee of the Holmead Club, was present to resign. The club refused to allow the resignation, and ousted the captain. The place was looked upon as a joke, however, as the Holmead Club has a membership of less than a dozen.

Concerning tickets that the elections will be held on, Chairman Setton said today: "We expect to recognize all bona fide organizations. Expense may prevent the making of lists upon all of the twenty-two legislative districts of the city, but there is nothing to prevent the placing of names in the list of putting up tickets in their own districts."

Chairman Setton is busy today negotiating for a theater in which to hold the local convention.

VAUGHN CLASS TAKES IN FOUR NEW MEMBERS

At the monthly business meeting of the Vaughn Class Club, of Calvary Baptist Sunday school, last evening, the following were initiated into the club: A. L. Swartwout, J. Branson, Dr. F. I. Bartlett, and Mr. Van Vleck.

After the business session, brief addresses were made upon topics of the day by W. L. Tenny, June P. Wooten, W. Merriman, and James Price. Musical program was then given by Guy Orand, and Mrs. Cranston Laurie, baritone; W. C. Dashiell, basso, and the West End Mandolin Club. Refreshments followed.

The Red Cross inquiry now in progress under direction of the special committee appointed by ex-Secretary Richard Olney is continuing for the present in executive manner, behind closed doors. Ambrose, is seeking in the official records some answer to a number of charges submitted by the remonstrants.

BURIAL OF MOY SUE WING.

Moy Jim placing food and money in his dead friend's grave to help him on his long journey.

Moy Sue Wing Buried With Chinese Ceremony

Food, Drink, Clothing, and Money Placed in Grave to Sustain Spirit on Long Journey to Heaven.

Six almond-eyed Chinamen and as many hundred curious American women and children attended the funeral services of Moy Sue Wing in Congressional Cemetery. The ceremonies were conducted in strict accordance with the Chinese religion, and even though Moy was but a poor laundryman, he was paid every respect that could possibly have been bestowed on him.

The body remained in an undertaking establishment for more than a week in order to give Moy's spirit time to rest before the long journey to the Chinese heaven. Fake money by thousands of slips was scattered along the route from Lee's undertaking place to the cemetery, and enough food to feed a score of Chinamen was thrown in the grave on top of the casket.

Wing came to Washington several years ago from Chicago, where he had amassed a fortune of $600, which he deposited in bank there. Taking a little money with him, he left Chicago and came to Washington, setting up a laundry on Four-and-a-half Street, between D and C Streets, southwest. He had a good business and everything was going smooth with him until Sunday, April 9, when he dropped dead, having been stricken with heart disease. His funeral was set several times, but owing to superstitions it was postponed as fast as a date was agreed upon.

Date Finally Set.

Moy Jim, a star friend of Moy Wing, and the leader of the Moy faction of Chinese in Washington, finally called his friends about him, and a large conference was held. It was finally decided to hold the services on Monday, eight days after death. Moy Jim ordered that the two large chickens and sufficient other good things be prepared to last the deceased's spirit across the River Styx. This was done, and promptly at 3 o'clock the lid of the coffin was screwed on and the Chinamen lined up on the outside of Lee's establishment, as the body was brought out and placed in the hearse.

Two baskets filled with eatables, a large bag containing Moy Sue Wing's clothes, and a lot of fake money, and a large bundle of money to be scattered along the street were placed in the hearse, which was followed by a diminutive adorer of the Joss, wearing a gold cap and a red necktie, stuffed his pockets full of money and took his seat on the box beside the driver of the first hack.

The other sons of the Far East scrambled into the two remaining hacks, and just as the cortege was about to start Moy Jim, was about to call another postponement because a camera was pointed at the hearse. He was talked out of the idea of putting the services off any longer, and in another moment the procession was on its way at a slow pace. Moy Young pulled his roll of fake bills from his pocket and began to scatter them on the streets as soon as the horses made their first step, and continued it until the cemetery was reached. The money was scattered on the street to pay Wing's way across the River Styx, but a crowd of street urchins followed close behind the hearse, on which Moy Young was seated, and picked up almost every one of the slips of cream-colored tissue paper with which he had been paid.

Arriving at the cemetery without incident, the Chinamen began the real ceremonies. The plain wooden casket without name-plate and little trimming, was put on props above the grave. Moy Jim halted the grave diggers here, from a package in a carriage about fifty sticks of extra large punk were taken and stuck in the dirt at the foot of the grave.

of the grave. These were lighted, the Chinamen then removed their hats and stood for some moments with bowed heads while Moy Jim recited a prayer which the six Chinamen probably understood. The surging crowd of six hundred or more persons pushed so near the grave that women and children were pushed down and one child had a narrow escape from sharing Moy's grave with him.

Ceremonies at Grave.

Superintendent Earshaw finally restored order and the services went on. The coffin was lowered and covered and then the dirt was thrown in. When the box was about half covered Moy Jim took the cloth from the two baskets and threw a chicken, two bowls of rice, one large jug of Chinese wine, a pot of tea, several small tea-cups, and eight pairs of chop sticks into the grave. When these were covered three of the Chinamen went to a carriage and took out the large bag containing Moy Wing's clothing and the money. Several matches were applied to the bag and within a few moments the contents were consumed.

More dirt having been thrown into the grave, Moy Jim threw another chicken, two bowls of rice, and a bag of Chinese candy and nuts into it. When the mound was rounded and the remaining dirt cleared away, the mourners got into their carriages and returned to Chinatown.

Moy Wing's effects were taken in charge by Moy Jim, and will be sent to his relatives in Chicago.

Moy Wing was buried in the extreme southeastern portion of the cemetery near the Eastern Branch, beside about thirty other of his countrymen, who have died in Washington, and been buried within the past fifteen years.
